

October 2005 Eco Tour Brazil's Pantanal & Iguazu Falls

With an optional extension to Rio de Janeiro and the Atlantic Rainforests

Join the National Aviary and International Expeditions for a ten-day eco tour to Brazil and Argentina in October 2005. Enjoy a 5-day adventure at the Caiman Ecological Refuge, a working ranch featuring first-rate wildlife viewing via safari vehicle and guided nature walks, or opt for complimentary horseback riding and canoeing. Visit the Hyacinth Macaw research center and view a variety of wildlife including Jabiru Storks, Giant Anteaters, Toco Toucans, Jaguars, Caimans and more in their natural habitats. The ranch, run by spirited Pantaneira cowboys, features deluxe accommodations and gourmet meals.

Then, venture onto the beautiful Iguazu Falls, over 700 km of waterfalls and one of the greatest natural wonders on earth, with explorations on both the Brazilian and Argentinean sides. Take part in an authentic South American dinner theater performance featuring native music, dance, costumes and cuisine. Those wishing to continue their adventure can explore the picturesque views and sights of Rio de Janeiro and the Atlantic Rainforests during a special 4-day optional extension. For more information, including a detailed itinerary and cost breakdown, contact Tiffany Sander at 412-323-7235 extension 215 or visit www.aviary.org.
