Membership in National Aviary Has (Lots of) Privileges Free Admission, Discounts at Zoos, Botanical Gardens Across Country

Membership in the National Aviary has its privileges—unlimited free admission, personal guided tours, and discounts in the gift shop and on special programs such as Breakfast with the Birds. All that plus the knowledge that membership dollars provide critical support to the National Aviary’s work in bird conservation and research.

And for those who travel, there’s more.

All members of the National Aviary can take advantage of free and/or discounted admission at more than 300 AZA (American Zoo & Aquarium Association) accredited zoos and aquariums, as well as botanical gardens and conservatories, across the country.

Close to home, National Aviary members enjoy free admission to the Philadelphia Zoo, Cleveland Metroparks Zoo, Cleveland Botanical Gardens, Toledo Zoo, Maryland Zoo in Baltimore, Buffalo & Erie Botanical Gardens, Buffalo Zoological Gardens, Erie Zoo, Toledo Zoo and Oglebay’s Good Zoo in Wheeling, West Virginia.

Further afield, members receive free admission at the Miami Metro Zoo and the Jacksonville Zoological Gardens in Florida, the Honolulu Zoo in Hawaii, the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston, the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, and the Houston Zoo and Dallas Zoo in Texas, to name just a few.

A complete listing of U.S. zoos and gardens participating in this reciprocal program can be found on the National Aviary’s web site www.aviary.org.

Membership at the National Aviary starts at just $45. Membership contributions further the National Aviary’s education programs, expand the Aviary’s bird collection, and support participation in the Species Survival Plan and other research and conservation projects.

The National Aviary inspires respect for nature through an appreciation of birds.
